Coronavirus (COVID-19)

The ongoing coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, caused by a new strain of coronavirus, has resulted in extraordinary measures around the world to contain, slow the pace, or reduce the impact of the virus.

There is a lot of misinformation circulating about what the COVID-19 virus is, how it’s transmitted, how to prevent it and how to treat it. This section contains information on sex and COVID-19 and what the virus means for people living with HIV. It also talks you through some common myths and facts.

To access the most up-to-date COVID-19 information and advice visit the World Health Organization’s Coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pages.

Coronavirus (COVID-19) and HIV

Take our COVID-19 quiz!

Sex and coronavirus (COVID-19)

What does the COVID-19 mean for people living with HIV? Information on how coronavirus is passed on and how to protect yourself.

Take our quiz to see if you have got all the right information about COVID-19 and how to look after your health.

COVID-19 is not a sexually transmitted infection, however, it can be passed on through kissing and close contact, including having sex.

COVID-19: Myths and facts

Infographics on coronavirus (COVID-19)

Resources on COVID-19 for community health workers
Putting the record straight on common COVID-19 myths and misinformation.

Get all our COVID-19 infographics in one place, making it easier for you to share the correct information with your online community.

Our Boost app has new information and resources on COVID-19 specially designed for community health workers and their clients.